Training on Ethical Values

The Training Division, in collaboration with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) and key institutional bodies - including the IPR Cell, Innovation & Incubation Cell, Centre for Renewable Energy, Water Institute, and other centres of excellence - plays a crucial role in operationalizing ethical sustainability. The university conducts structured training programs, workshops, seminars, and awareness sessions that are specifically designed to instill ethical values and responsible conduct among students, faculty, administrative staff, and stakeholders at all levels.

These training initiatives focus on:

- Professional ethics and integrity in academic and research practices
- Cyber ethics, data privacy, and information security
- Responsible use of emerging technologies such as Artificial Intelligence
- Workplace ethics, inclusivity, and respect for diversity
- Compliance, governance, and institutional accountability

Through these continuous capacity-building efforts, KITS ensures that ethical values are not only documented but also actively practiced and reinforced across the institution, thereby cultivating a culture of responsibility, trust, and ethical excellence.

Ethical sustainability reflects the institution's focus on governance, professional ethics, cybersecurity awareness, and responsible innovation. These initiatives ensure that students and faculty develop strong ethical foundations, professional responsibility, and awareness of governance practices in modern technological environments.

KITS has successfully organized numerous training programs and workshops aligned with SDGs, contributing to capacity building and sustainable development.
